Competency Based Curriculum (CBC)??

face brightens when she loves a subject. I notice that she can't do other things well and I assist her. So are we ready to do this till they're grown? After a long day in the ever unsure weather and relentless dust do we have it in us to recite, make art, hold cameras etc.? The main question is the children receiving their basic need for me the parent to have extra money to do all this? We need more time money and energy for this curriculum? Is there any amendment that will aid with this? Is it the fact that the child is mine that when the government says jump should just drop the 32 years of the 8-4-4 and fall in line with the "experiment"?

Our educators, God bless them. Was there training for them? Was there a period for them to be allowed to drop the habits of the 8-4-4 system? Were they educated? Because they are educators they should roll with the punches? Why are they telling the parent to print, download make things while the whole society is struggling living below the poverty level? I'm sure they are just following instructions. Should these instructions be inhumane to us to create a rift between the teacher and the parent and affect the child who we are supposed to nurture? As a democracy, we are the government and this fact does not occur to us even though we know it's true. We don't know of the laws and amendments made. We just cry help and go back to look for food, which makes sense, as my family wont sleep hungry because of the government. So what do we know? Did the HON .Mwai Kibaki free education shrivel up in to thin air? Is it still implemented? Due to the rise in cost of education was it added to support the new system? Is the new system separating the next generation in terms of the rich will be richer and the poor making scare crows and being clowns? Is this system just to all the children in Kenya? This is no offence to the rich parent kindly give your child the best you can offer and also assist the poor parent to be the government.

CBC requires a comprehensive change in the instructional approach in terms of teaching, learning, and assessment.

Clearly I have more questions than answers. As a parent I'm more connected to my child as we spend extra time together every evening. As an 8-4-4 graduate CBC made lots of sense in theory, well then theorems and x + y haven't made sense yet, but I'm not mad at my ability to have a broad set of abilities in my arsenal, i can confidently chip in a number of topics thanks to the 8-4-4 system. Should we bring it back? Hasn't it raised this society we are in? Should they have polished the system, created a better way in it instead of a complete massacre? CBC, the light that was, a quick fix to serve the 2030 goals. Was it a panic reaction to the quickly changing world? Was the fear the fear that we can't control the economy? We the government? Was an unchecked system a wise solution to experiment with the future generation? Did we forget that we are a third world generation? Did the fast moving first world inspire a gluttonous reaction from us? Its 2021 today in a twinkling of an eye 2022 will be over. We the parents are calling for #CBCmustfall. I am not denying the fact that 2-6-3-3-3 curriculum is truly a game changer for any and society. I can see it; the vision is almost perfect empowering our children with the exact skills and empowerment that they need to live fulfilled lives. They are developed according to who they are their strengths and weaknesses are seen at an early age by both parent and teacher. Both works together to direct the child in the right path. This is an empowered child, a child that grows with a true knowledge of who they are and work on their creativity along the way. Imagine the possibilities. I already see the bright future, heavenly. As parents and teachers are we ready? I am glad that I spend a little more time with my baby its how her

Club 034: The Pride of Kajiado

Air Kajiado gives you a chance to sample culinary delights

By Kiptanui Rutto

As you leave Kitengela town you will see a 707 Boeing with staircase set on it. Yes, you will think there is an airport there. A bee-hive of activities around the place with tens of cars parked near it. You are wrong, there is no airport there.

A multi-million facility dubbed: "The Pride of Kajiado" has opened its doors in Kajiado County and is set to become as a major boon in the region's growing hospitality industry.

Kajiado's Air 034 Bar and Restaurant, located along the busy Kitengela and Namanga Road, nearly 2 Kilometres from Kitengela town promises to become a major tourist attraction centre in the region.

Ng'etich, the proprietor said the facility will come in handy at a time when there is high population growth in the area.

"The facility is strategically placed and will be easily accessed by motorists and those willing to be dropped off at Yukos stage since we are less than ten metres away from the main road," Ng'etich stated.

With Kitengela emerging as a getaway for majority of Nairobi residents who would like to enjoy their time and the delicacies of roast goat meat, this is the place to be. We will offer better quality services for the locals who are keen on spending their weekend together with their families.

Though he said that people think that roast meat has to be done with charcoal oven, the facility seeks to do it in a different way.

"We want to look for other alternatives but more fun such as gas grill of its kind -roasting a capacity of five goats or 200 orders at ago- so that it is environmentally friendly and reduces illnesses associated with meat roasting using charcoal burners.

Choma can be roasted in other ways and be healthier, we use gas grill as the charcoal might have side effects as a result of smoke.

"We are targeting people not only those who want to come to the place over the weekend besides those from Nairobi and other places who would want to visit the town," Ng'etich noted.

For those who want to have a 'get together' session, it offers them a better opportunity as its accessibility will be a big boost.

"We have enough space for groups of people eager to sample our local cuisine," he stated.

In the plane, there is a VIP bar and restaurant coupled with live music from a band. Here, one can have an excellent view of Kitengela and a section of Kajiado County especially the panoramic view of Ngong Hills through the plain.

"We will offer the necessary utensils to those who want to come and cook for themselves as they enjoy their stay at the facility," he said.

With ample parking space that can accommodate over 100 vehicles, he believes that he is raring to rattle the market.

"Our prices are affordable and the services better and will improve with time to give our patrons unrivaled experience," he promised.

The new facility will also offer direct employment to Kenyans to work as chefs and other hotel staff. "We will offer a ready market for farmers to supply us with eggs, milk, chicken, vegetables and other requirement," he said.

Death of Deep State

The period under review also saw the demise of a business magnate Christopher Kirubi (CK). CK fell due to cancer, a sickness he had fought with dignity and rancor for 5 years or so years. A typical grass to grace story, CK rose to be one of the wealthiest personalities in the country with an estimated wealth of over 40Billion in 2016. His money flowed from investment in the media, transportation, real estate manufacturing and the hotel and tourism industry as well as the money markets. He is fondly remembered for his business advice in an online newspaper. Tweets from CK were particularly intense and his last tweet was six hours before his demise. What emerged during his burial was that he was a serious political influencer behind the curtains? Mourners from both sides of the divide eulogized him as a keen influencer of the daily political leaning from wings as he believed rightly-that without the proper brand of politics, then business will fail to prosper and with it the general good of the country and the citizens were want to suffer. For this behind the curtains activities in promoting good politics. It is appropriate to brand him "the deep state".

A Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde

The period under review also witnessed the demise of Mr.Naushad Merali who passed on from undisclosed illness. Mr. Merali was an extremely wealthy personality with the Forbes magazine estimating his assets about 60 Billion and pronouncing him as the second wealthiest person in the country. Mr. Meralli assets included Yana tyres, Sameer group of companies similar of Dr.Jerkyl, Merali was a jovial personality in social circles and a philanthropist in social circles, helping the needy in so many number of ways. But he became Mr.Hyde I Business deals portraying a ruthless nose for profit with a keen strategic mind for negotiations. It is rumored that back in 2005 he managed to make a profit of Ksh 1.2Billion within a space of 2 hours. Like Chris Kirubi it is rumored that he was on the presidents speed dial Rest in Peace Naushad Meralli

Kajiado riders arrest suspected motorcycle thieves

Kajiado County Boda Boda chairman Fredrick Risa led an operation to retrieve a stolen bike in Kajiado West.

"We have arrested one person with a motorbike belonging to Kinyanjui from Eastmatt stage in Kajiado town and the other is a mechanic who had taken the bike to a place called Tinga on your way to Magadi. “I want to share with you a matter of grammar. If you use a pronoun or noun before a verb and is followed by a noun, that verb is a function of the pronoun of the noun before the verb and the noun following the verb. But if you have a sentence that is broken thereafter you find a noun and another verb, it cannot relate to the noun and the pronoun that preceded the second verb. If you look at article 257, it is spoken in two parts the first is deliver, that is signatures. The second verb is to register,” said senior counsel James Orenge in his final submission to the BBI Bench at the court of Appeal.
